Paul.

So really, I want to find words to express how close you have become to me this past year! I've always liked you just this our senior year. You always have meant so much to me! I've had great times as well as bad!!
I could go on and on but I'll just stop with what I've said except

Paul - Best of luck
in all you ever do!!

So a girl who has lots of trouble like me, I've really had lots of fun this year with you and I hope we will always be friends.
Maybe someday we will get married, but for me that will be a long way off. I hope you and Dave last the rest of your lives, because I know you really love him.

Advancement grows out of

From the first frightening bus ride of a six-year-old to the water-eyed Senior listening to "Pomp and Circumstance", students advance through 12 years at school. The life of any student is filled with a variety of activities, events, decisions and learning experiences. As shown in these pictures bus rides (4), banquets (2), band events (1), and bulletin boards (3) all combine, with many other things, to make up student life! Through these events students advance in ability and cooperation and begin to become the mature individuals necessary for life beyond high school.

The greatest part of a student's time at school is spent in the classroom (1), listening to lectures, taking notes, and supposedly studying. But learning has to do with things in addition to classrooms. Various convocations (2) are presented during the school year to entertain, educate, and inform students. Yet, even though most convocations are interesting, not all types of convocations appeal to every person and the sad result may be boredom for some students.

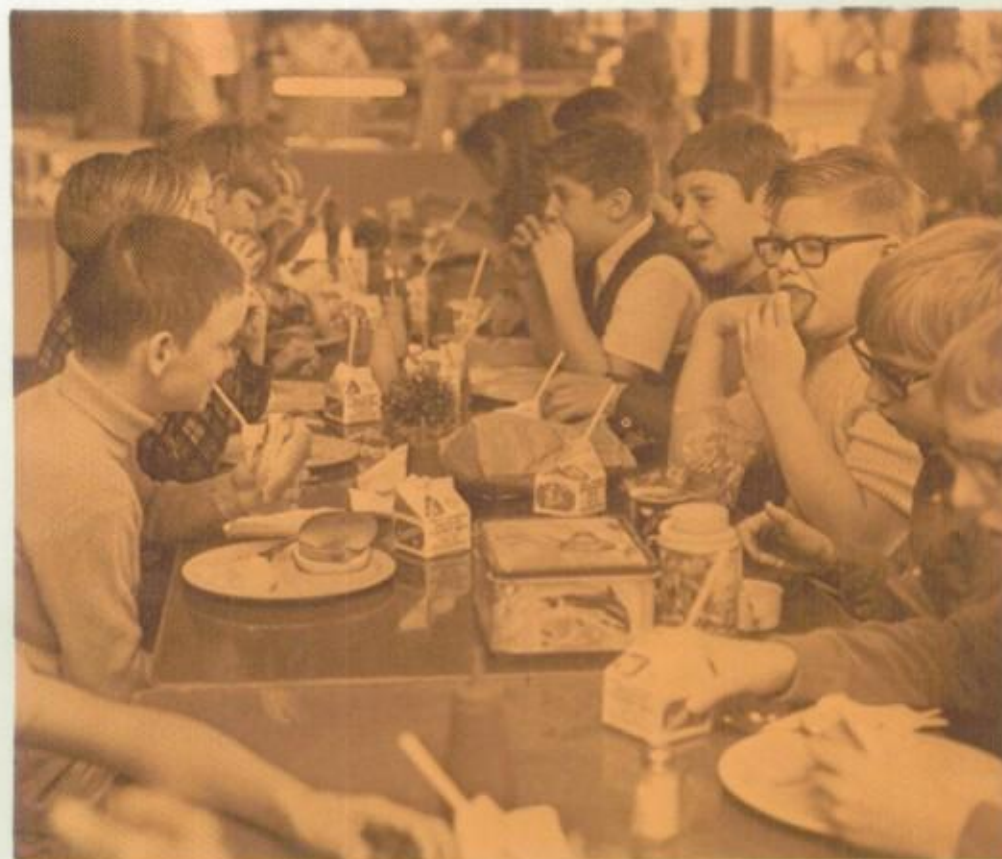

Another aspect of learning, outside the classroom, is physical education (4). Gym classes are held to help improve the physical ability of students, along with the mental ability created by the classroom phase of education. But student life is not always made up of learning, at times physical features (3) and somewhat unrelated incidents interrupt the normal, everyday life of a student.

Upon opening some students' lockers, books, tablets, and assorted papers and paperbacks come tumbling out (2). Yet, when other lockers are opened every book is in place. As illustrated, lockers are not only a place for students to keep books, they are also an extension of the personality of the owner.

Minis, midis, maxis, and every length in-between many have been worn this year. Although some may feel that Staunton is a tiny backward community, the picture (1) shows that the students here are not totally isolated, at least in the realm of fashion. Yet, even though the midi is supposed to take the place of the mini in the fashion world, girls at Staunton haven't been totally convinced that the longer skirt will banish short skirts forever.

The population explosion has had its effect, on SHS. Students often have difficulty making their way through crowded halls (3) or finding places to sit in the school cafeteria. (4).

HALL. Mr. Magrose.

Books, are a necessary part of student life, and the library (1) at Staunton has been improved in recent years so that students now have access to a library that fulfills their needs to a greater extent than was possible before.

But all information cannot come from books, and for this reason signs are placed in the halls and on bulletin boards (2). These signs inform students of coming events and remind them of rules necessary for the good of the students and the school.

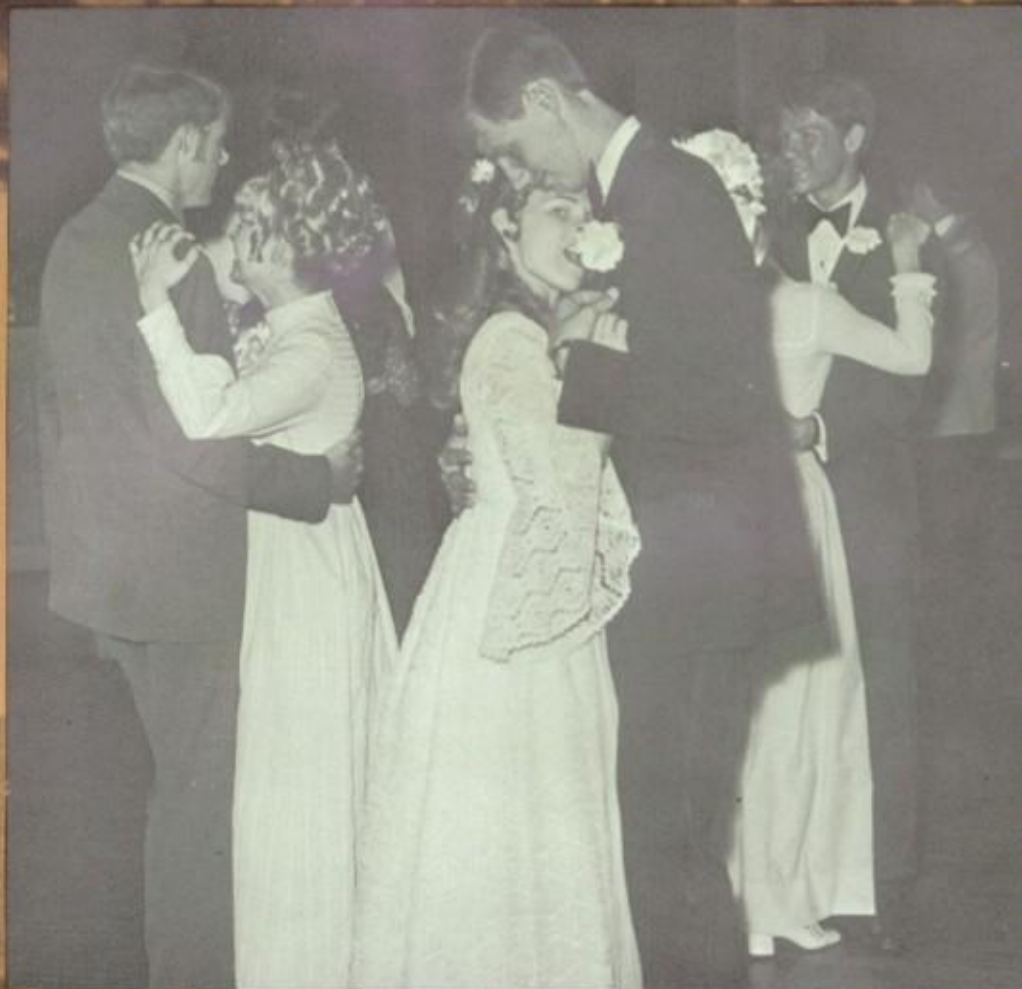

One of the improvements at Staunton for the school year, 1970-1971, was the addition of a student lounge (4). The lounge was created to give students a place to go during their study hall periods and especially the noon hour, so that the lower hall would not be so crowded and congested. The lounge, which is open to students in the upper three grades, gives students the chance to watch television, study, or simply relax for a part of their school day. The lounge was closed for a few weeks (3) due to the irresponsibility of a small minority of students, but was reopened with the hope that the students would realize that the responsibility for the continuing use of the lounge was up to them.

Finally, after advancing through 11 years of school, students become Seniors, and the greatest class ever, at least in their own opinion. During their senior year, students participate in a great many events--sometimes so many that they wonder if they're ever going to have any time by themselves, just to think.

Some of the many things seniors are busy with are making "cords" (1), and then wearing them--in somewhat strange places at times. Also, one of the highlights of the year is the election of the Basketball Queen (2). One lucky senior girl is elected to serve as queen for the homecoming basketball game, while two other senior girls serve as her attendants.

By the time they are seniors, many students have gone steady for several years and feel they are ready to plan for marriage in the near future (2). One of the dances these couples and others are able to attend is the Prom (1). For the short hours that the prom and post-prom last, the couples that attend are part of a dream-like world made up of tuxedos, corsages, and soft music. But the picnic serves to bring the couples back to a real world, for ants in a sandwich are hardly the stuff that dreams are made of.

ATHLETICS

Home runs, track meets, basketball practice, Queen-crowning--throughout the year students at Staunton participate in varied athletic activities and events. These events help create and sustain school spirit and pride, yet they also encourage the development of group cooperation and teamwork. In addition, these activities help to increase the physical and mental capabilities of each student involved.

As a result of the sports events themselves and the added activities which encourage athletic spirit, everyone at Staunton has the opportunity to become involved in the athletic program in some way--either as an actual participant or an interested spectator.

The category of sports labeled Track is made up of several different events. As shown, students participate in pole-vaulting, shot put, and running. They also are active in broad-jumping, high-jumping and hurdles.

Don Miller shows the muscle control that is essential in pole vaulting.

Participants in these events must have the patience and the determination to practice the many hours necessary to achieve some degree of perfection in their activities and the ability to accept any possible defeat gracefully.

One of the qualifications for running dashes and relays is stamina. Jerry White demonstrates his ability as Coach Buell shouts his encouragement.

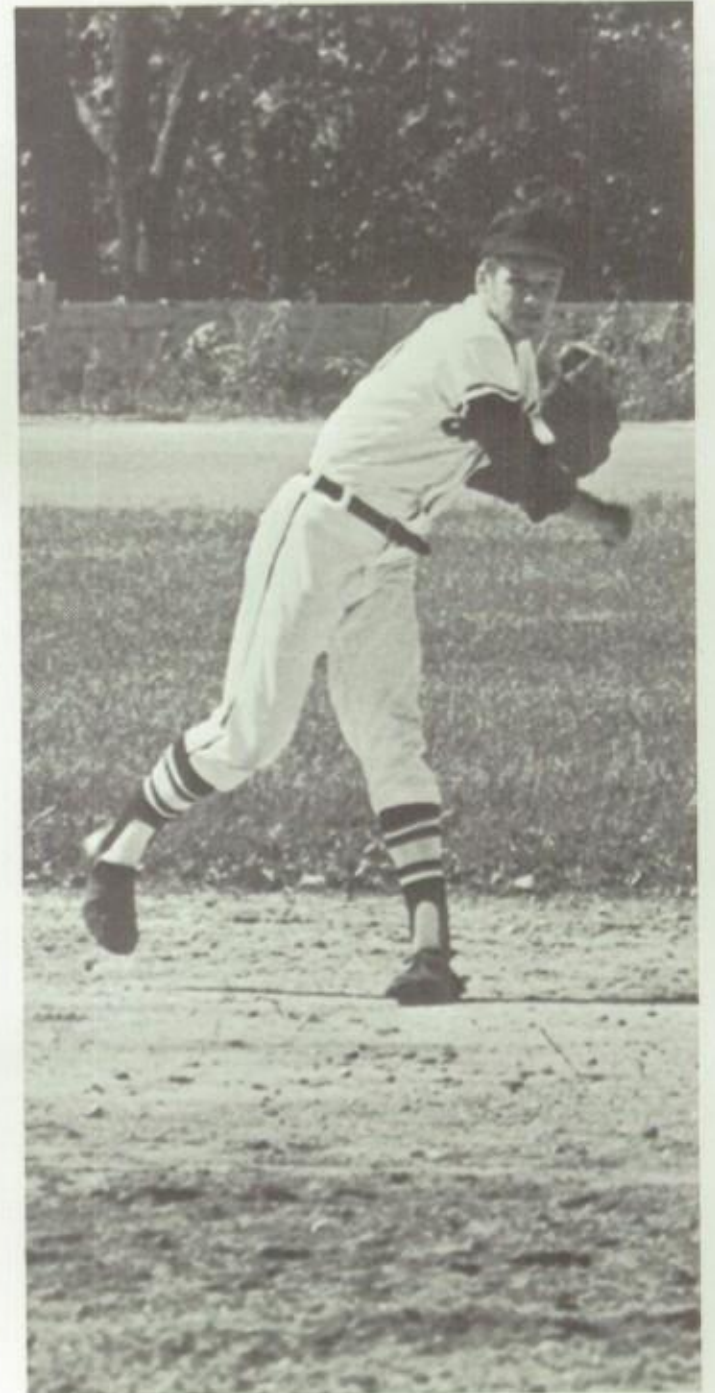

Strength, the key to a successful shot event, is shown here by Don Garrison as he attempts to hurl a winning throw.

Don Garrison at bat knocks the ball into the backfield.

Garry Rodgers has just hurled the ball to home plate.

"Rain, rain, go away" might have been the motto for our baseball team this past season for many of the games were postponed or never played because they were rained out. The boys give the spring baseball program all they've got, yet they often receive too little reward for the time and effort they expend. Sometimes this is due to the rain-out and sometimes to the fact that their fellow students don't recognize their efforts.

Coach Marvel sizes up the opposition. "Maybe we will win this one if the sun stays out."

Run, run, as fast as you can

Endurance is a major requirement for students participating on the cross country team. Each member of the team must run approximately six miles each afternoon to be in top condition for the county meets. Students who wish to be members of the team must have the desire to spend many hours working to improve their ability in the sport.

Lay-ups, jump balls, foul-shots, time-outs--a basketball game is comprised of many kinds of action. To reach the level of team work and ability necessary to play a winning game, team members, whether varsity or B-team, must practice many hours so that they will learn to work together as a team rather than as individuals. Team members also practice to gain the endurance necessary to play four quarters of a fast-paced game. Altogether, team work, practice, and endurance combine to make a team which, although it may not always win, always has the ability and always tries to win.

ADMIN.--FACULTY

Throughout twelve long years of school, members of the faculty and administration guide students to a better understanding of the world and the people that inhabit it. Although at times they may be used as threats, "You'll be sent to the principal if you don't behave," or "I'm going to tell the teacher on you," students gradually come to appreciate, and respect those who spend many hours a day helping students improve their minds. Besides the teachers who help mold minds, there are also administrators who see that there are facilities available for this task, cooks and nurses who ensure that students are well-fed and healthy during the school-day, teachers; helpers and librarians who attend to many essential jobs, and custodians who keep the buildings warm and clean. It is these individuals that provide students with a means by which to learn, and help prepare students for the world beyond the school walls.

ACTIVITIES

As students, we go to school to learn. This is why there are desks, and books, and classrooms. But learning is more than knowing that Columbus landed in 1492; learning is also growing--in understanding, in wisdom, in the ability to live with others.

It is for this reason that we have extra-curricular activities. When we engage in these activities, we learn things that cannot always be learned in books. In band, for example, we learn to co-operate with others, and, as illustrated, to give praise when it is due.

Therefore, at Staunton many activities are available in which we may participate and, hopefully, grow.

Students work to entertain others

Each Christmas season, the Drill Team and Twirlers combine to present a Christmas show at a basketball game which is played just before the holiday. They do a routine, or combination of routines, accompanied by members of the Pep Band (1), directed by Allan Horney. This year the show was done to a medley of Christmas songs, and the girls dressed up as ballerinas, (2), toy soldiers, rag dolls, a jack-in-the-box, and a helper for Santa (3). Ed Clark, one of the band students, dressed up as Santa Claus to help the girls with their show.

Hard work and much effort are rewarded

To celebrate their victory at State Fair, the band members, their parents, and their fans have an annual dinner and dance at Adami's Country Club. After the many hours of practice and hard work in the summer sun, all those who attend enjoy the food and festivities in the cool room. The soft music, which encourages dancing, and the chance to simply sit and relax, gives everyone an opportunity to enjoy themselves.

Each year the seniors have their own table (1) where they celebrate the many victories they have had in band. At this gala affair, the band director and his helpers are often given presents which show the band's appreciation. Mr. Allen Horney, the new band director, is being presented an award by Mike White, Drum Major, (2) and helpers Terry White, Peggy Emmert, and Janet Baker are receiving awards from Everett Woll, Music Club President, and Band Director Allan Horney (3).

Marching Season climaxed by State Fair

Many hours of practice in the hot summer sun, the slow march around the track in the morning, the thrilling news that "we're in the night show," --for three years our band has been in the Sweet Sixteen at the State Fair. The band members, their director, and other helpers, give up many hours of their summer vacation to polish to perfection difficult music and a complicated routine. The show, which lasts barely three minutes, must demonstrate to the judges that the band has enough ability in both playing and marching to be given the chance to compete in the Night Show. Having been given this chance, our band demonstrated that it definitely has these qualities, and will continue to have them as long as they desire.

Parades, whether they take place in Washington D.C. or Clay City, Ind., create a great deal of excitement, for both those participating and those watching. But in order to create this excitement, our band members must spend many hours so that they will be able to march in step, play in tune, and execute a routine. When they can do these things, and do them well, they demonstrate the marvelous "Staunton-style" for which they are well-known.

After many parades, and many hours of practice, these same band members learn that parades pay off. Their reward is publicity, and an opportunity to travel to many parts of the state and country. While they're suffocating in hot wool uniforms on a July day, band members may not feel that the parade is worth the effort; they appreciate it when they can travel on tours to Washington D.C. or parts of Michigan.

These girls performed together at a Christmas show, where Ed Clark, a band member, played Santa Claus (2), Norma White played Aunt Jemima (3), Mary Nugent and Carol Boruff played rag dolls (4).

Dance Bands I & II

Two new bands organized this year are Stage Bands or Dance Bands. The first public performance of these bands was at the Christmas Concert, where they played both dance-style songs and more popular tunes. Stage Band I (1) is largely made up of Juniors and Seniors, while Stage Band II (2) is composed of younger students.

Members of Stage Band I are R. Romas, M. Minor, D. Akers, D. Miller, D. Baker, B. Phillips, B. Smith, D. Garrison, M. Smith, J. Shaul, D. Evans, J. Lowe, D. Targett, M. Roeschlein, M. Burk, B. Kesler, R. Dellmo, and D. Shaul.

Members of Stage Band II are B. Overbay, J. Trout, V. Nolte, D. Butt, D. Maesch, D. Love, G. Lutes, D. Royer, S. Brown, J. Shaul, M. Smith, D. Shaul, D. Butt, S. Boggess, K. Williams, M. Koile, J. Kumpf, and S. Parkins.

“All the world's a stage . . .”

"Love Rides the Rails" was the title of an old-fashioned melodrama presented by members of the Junior and Senior classes during March, 1970. Three of the most important characters in any play of this type--the hero, played by Rich Robinson; the heroine, played by Marion Martin; and the hero's friend portrayed by Robbie Pickett--are shown here (1) with the train made by cast members. Also necessary are a villain, played by Jesse Lowe, and a villainess, played by Helen Evinger. All proper villains must have mustaches, and Helen is shown (2) applying Jess's in addition to other make-up. Members of the cast include (3): SEATED left to right; Rich Robinson, Donna McMillan, Sue Evinger, Robbie Pickett, Helen Evinger, Marian Martin, Lana Rodgers. STANDING: Don Garrison, Jess Lowe, Robin Evans, Ron Baker, Diana Baker, Christy Webster, Diane Akers, Debi Willmouth, and Ward Wyndham.

Honors Day rewards efforts

Each spring, many outstanding students and teachers are acknowledged in an Honors Day Program. The students receive awards for academic excellence during the school year, and the teachers are often presented with gifts which show that students do appreciate the help they receive. One important aspect of Honors Day is that students and teachers alike take the time and effort to give credit where it is due; for work well done and help gratefully received.

Some students and teachers involved in the 1970 Honors Day program were: (1) Joe Kumpf, National Honor Society president, speaking to those present; (2) Mrs. A. Wilcoxin, girls' physical education teacher, presenting G.A.A. awards to Vickie Deakins, Rita Nolte, Julie Bledsoe, Sandy Boggess, Debbie Maesch, Marsie Hardey, Onya Sanders, Kimberly Villain; (3) Mrs. Bowman, geometry teacher, presenting an award to Claudia Bennett.

Newspaper gets new name

The previous name of the school paper was THE YELLOW JACKET which was changed to THE SPOKESMAN this year so that the paper and the yearbook would not have the same name. Members of the newspaper staff are (l. to r.) P. Smith, B. Smith, D. Akers, R. Romas, D. Hoffman, S. Evinger, D. Baker. SECOND ROW: W. Guire, V. Willmouth, L. Moody, B. Smith, J. Edwards, E. Clark, J. Phillips, B. Bidaman, D. Brown, B. Phillips, D. Lash, D. Bryan, and C. Boruff. C. Zukunft is not pictured.

Staunton girls earn county honors

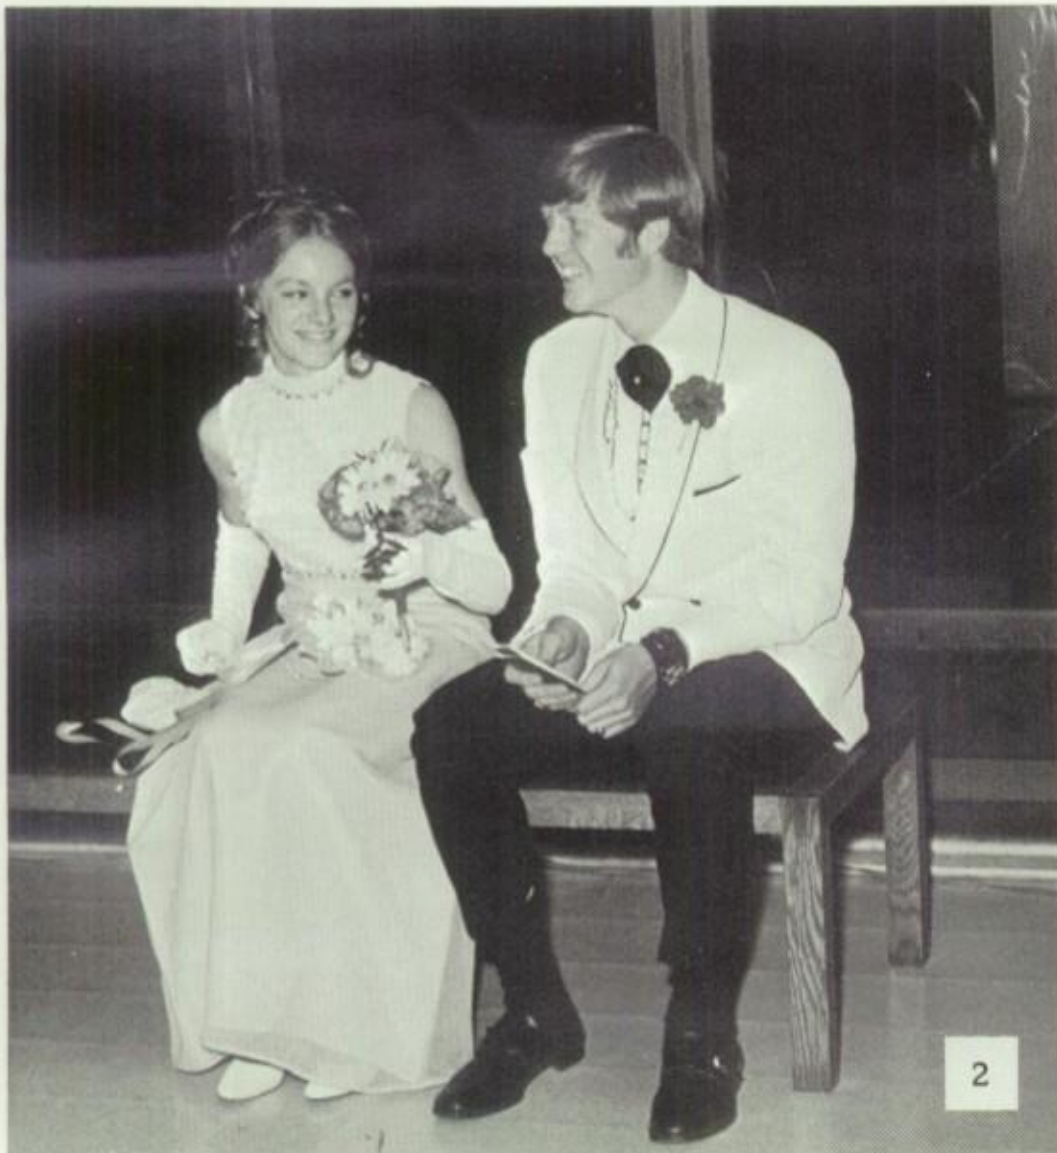

Each fall a queen and attendant are selected from one of the county high schools to reign over the K-Day Parade sponsored by the Brazil Kiwanis Club. Floy Knust, Staunton's queen candidate, and her attendant, Kathy Ripple, won the titles this year, and rode in the parade (1) as "K-Day Queen" and attendant, as have other Staunton girls in previous years.

The title of "Miss Flame" of Clay County 1970 was won this year by Claudia Bennett, who was accompanied by "Miss Flame" of Clay County 1969, Margaret Russell, also a Staunton girl. (2). Claudia won the honor because she wrote an essay on Fire Prevention and Fire Safety which was judged along with those of other county students. The essay Claudia wrote was judged to be the best of those entered in the contest and she was awarded the title of "Miss Flame."

Proms and Christmas dances

"Through endless time drifts a beautiful thought, a memory. It is cherished with loving tenderness. Someday I will close my eyes and look back; it is then I will relive my 'Cherished Memories'." This thought will linger always in the minds of those who attended the Junior-Senior Prom, "Cherished Memories." They will always have in their possession "Memories, pressed between the pages of their minds."

highlight formal school activities

Another memory which many students will have of this year is the 1970 Christmas Dance, "The Spirit of Make-Believe." The student chosen to reign over the dance as queen was Judy Brown. Her escort was Sam Dickison. The couples that attended this dance will always, if only faintly, remember the night they were part of the Spirit of Make-Believe.

Students help in offices and libraries

Each hour of the school day student helpers are busy in the administrative offices. They run errands, type, and do minor work, yet work that needs to be done. Girls who work in the office of Mr. Mayrose are (1) l. to r. Lana Rodgers, Kathy Ripple, Becky Russell, Carol Boruff, and Debbie Butt. Connie Hughes (2) also works in the principal's office. Dave Harrison and Mike White pick up the mail each day.

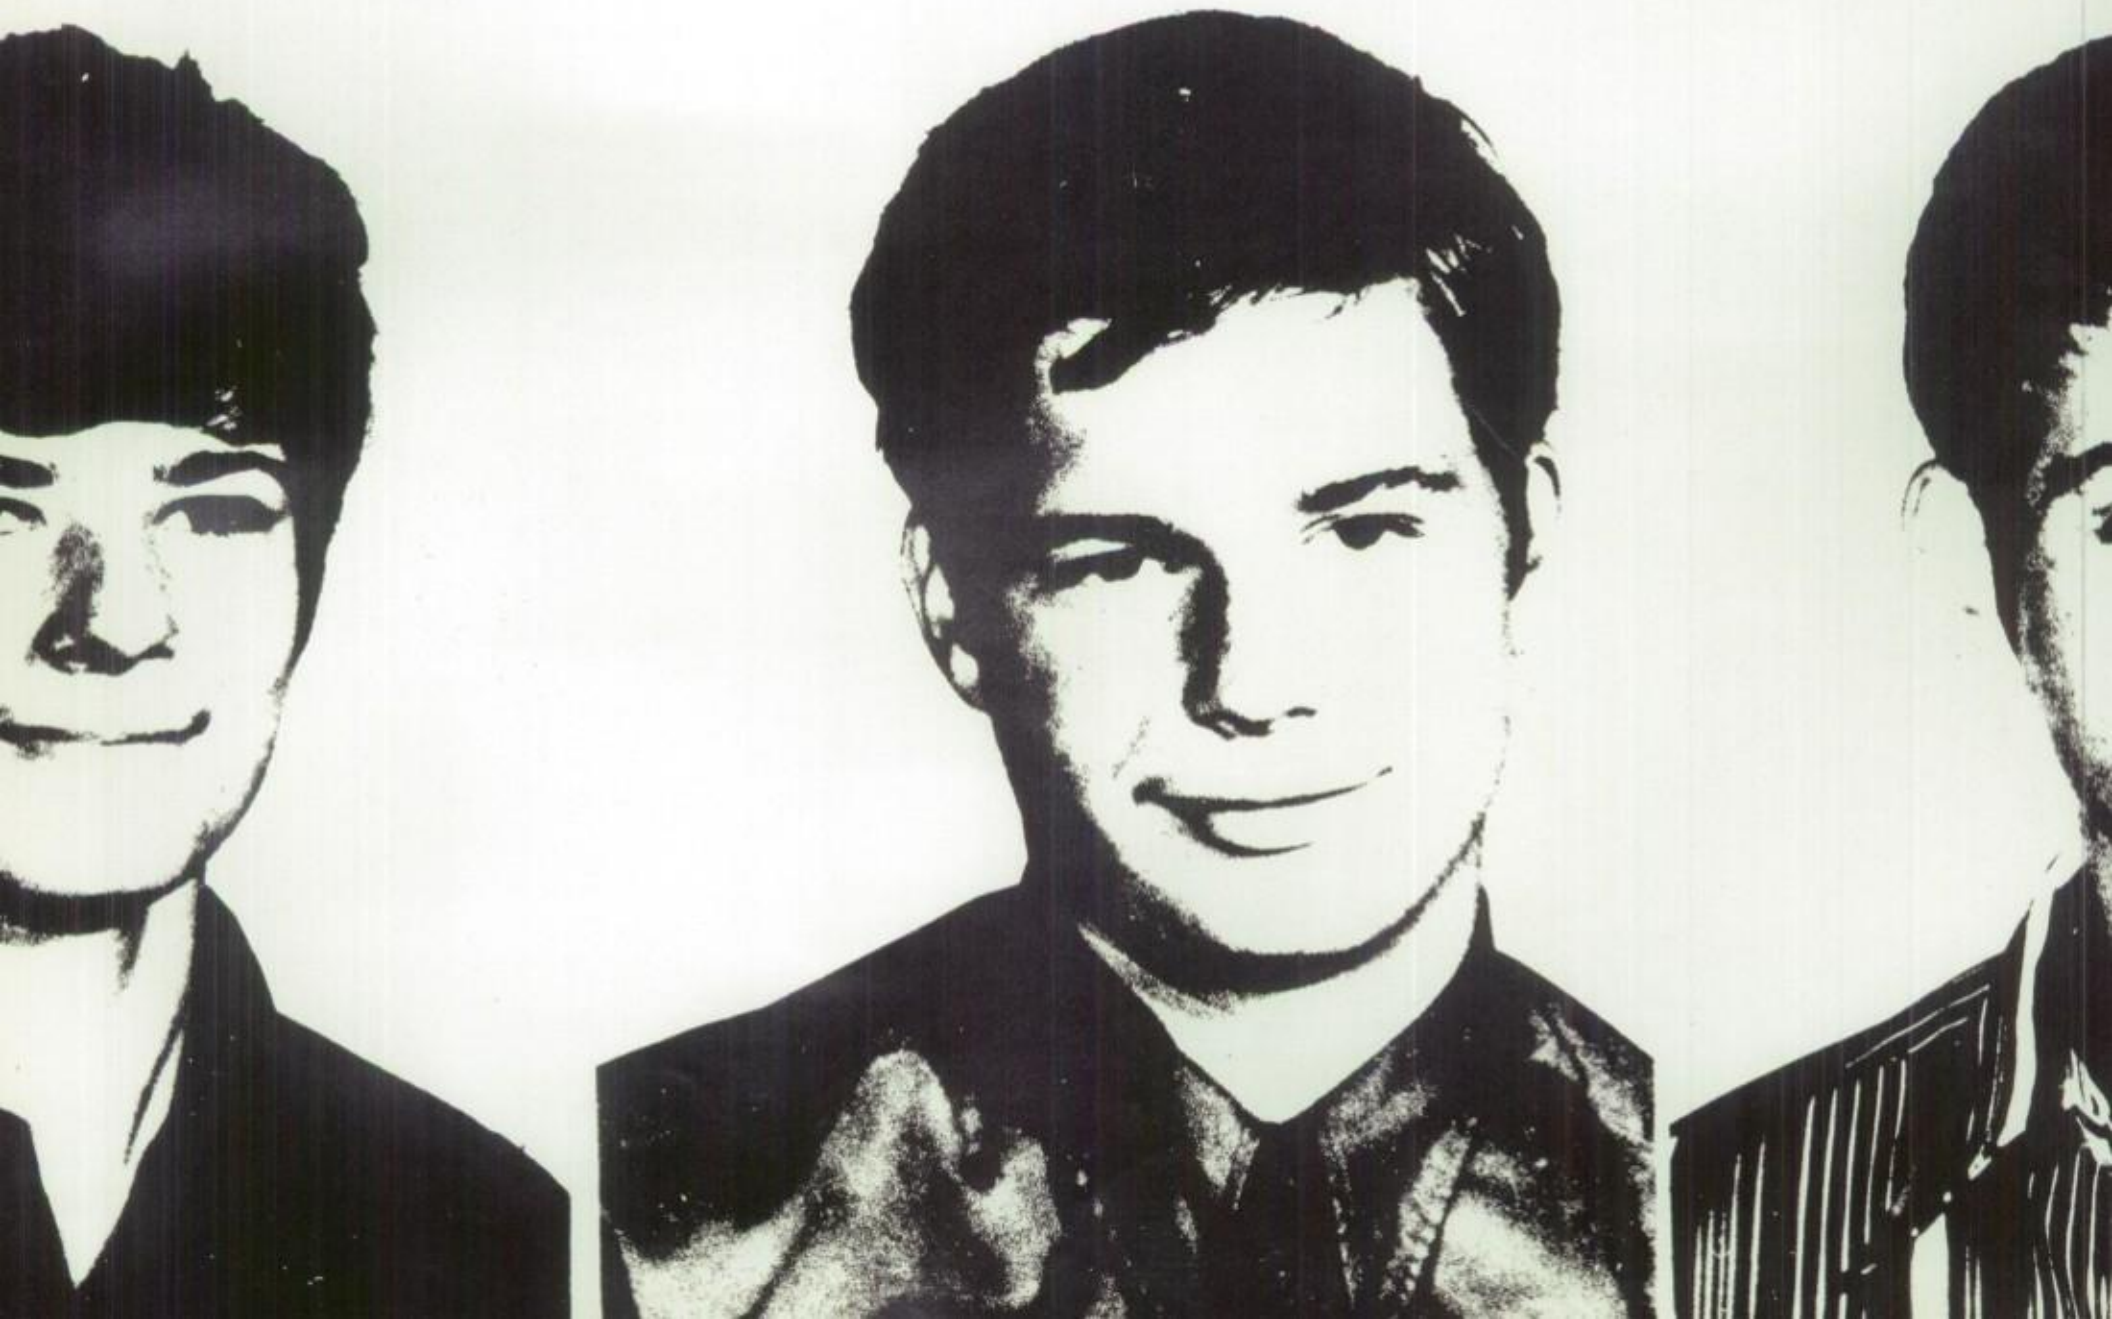

(3) Girls who are helpful in the guidance office are left to right: Floy Knust, Tana Brown, and Sandy McGowen. In the Elementary Building each hour of the day, there is a girl who does some of the busy work for Darrel Craig, Assistant Principal. These girls (4) are: SEATED at desk, Norma White; STANDING: Donna McMillan, Sandy Lucas, Cindy Siegelin, Janet Mitchell, and Vicki Willmouth.

Student librarians are a necessity around Staunton. In the high school library each day the girls check out books, dispense helpful information to those students who require it, and help the librarian and assistant librarian whenever needed. (1) These girls are, left to right, Vickie Deakins, Martha Foulke, Joyce Butler, Rita Bryan, Linda Bell, and Tana Brown. Elementary librarians (2) are, Margie Kriebs, Jayne Conrad, Carla Holley, Joan Fagg, and Sally Russell. Film as well as books needs to be organized and checked in and out. (3) John Neuenschwander, center, Steve Brannan, left, and Rex Haviland, right, check the location of a film-strip series. Librarians who have the most fun are the girls who take care of the music for the band. (4) These girls are: STANDING: Becky Phillips, Debbie Anderson, Gail Oliver, Vicki Willmouth, Carla Zukunft, and Marilyn Ferguson. Debbie Bryan, is SEATED in FRONT.

ALBUM

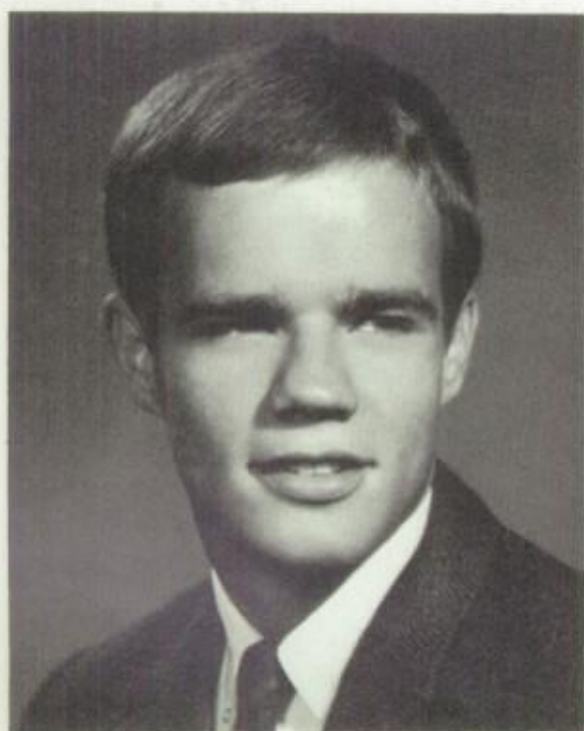

Faces and names, hundreds of them, from small insecure first-graders to supposedly intelligent and poised seniors ready to greet the "big, wide, wonderful world." But these faces and names are more than simply that; they represent distinct individuals, individuals who go to school, study, "goof off", sing, laugh, and cry.

And, because they are individuals, when we look at the pictures, we see more than what is actually shown there. We see someone's smile when he passed us in the hall; we think of the crazy things we've done together; we recall days long gone that were full of laughing hours--and tears. That is what we see as we glance through these pictures, and what we will remember.

EXIT

Twelve years
Of Running down stairs
Staying after school
Summer vacations.

Twelve years
Of Studying Hoping Planning
Dreaming.

And now
It has come to an end
And we
Exit
Through the nearest door.

And
As we finally leave
We're glad to be free
To face the world.

But also
We're a little hesitant
And a little sad.
Hesitant because we must now
Enter a new life
Sad because we're leaving
The life we've known.

And all we'll have left of it Is Memories.

Activity and elementary—

'You can't have one without the other''

Anywhere there are children, there will be motion . . . and emotion. Whether in organized games in the classroom or in spontaneous activity, youngsters will make their own happiness. Talking with friends of their own age or older, dressing up for Halloween, making paper hats, or posing for the photographer . . . they are busy; they are active. To go where "the action is" is to go to the Elementary Building at Staunton.

Elementary students look forward

Each year the children in the elementary school anticipate the Christmas program--sometimes with wide-eyed eagerness, sometimes with a feeling of self-importance, sometimes with a self-assurance that comes from years of prior experience. The 1970 Christmas entertainment was a resounding success for both the participants and the audience. A GIFT FOR SANTA, an operetta, was presented by Grades 4 and 5. Grades 1, 2, and 3 formed choral groups that sang songs and carols, both old and new.

Of course, no Christmas is complete without Santa Claus, this year portrayed by Joe Peebles. The entire program was under the direction of Mrs. Colleen South, Choral Director at Staunton.

ADVERTISING

Our yearbook could not exist without the goodwill of the business concerns who advertise on the following pages. Although those who add their patronage to this publication may change from year to year, we feel that the majority of the businesses in this area are back of us and for that we are continually grateful. Our staff photographer Bill Kesler (below right) has snapped products such as carpets and flowers in an effort to add student endorsement to local merchants.

As I gaze at the empty playground Worn bare by my feet
And those of the many children who have followed me
Memories come tumbling down from the attic of my mind-- a game of tag
a trip across the monkey bars a frantic attempt to make the merry-go-round spin faster and faster.

But these memories are crowded out by ones which are not so old-- other, younger children are playing on the swings or making the merry-go-round whirl, while I rush and stumble through the last days of my school life.

And I am not alone
There are many others who are rushing and stumbling with me
And each of us
Must at some time
Face an empty playground
In which we are too old, and too "grown-up"
To play.

But those of us who are lucky
Will see beyond the playground into the trees
And even beyond the trees
Into the future.

Our future--
And the future of the children still laughing and running over the ground.

And we will see that we could not remain on the playground forever-- wearing paths in the grass
For others have come, and will continue to come, to wear these paths.

And we must go on
To wear paths into the future
So that those who follow us
Can find the way.

Barb,
Good Luck with that certain someone!
(I wonder who) Be happy!

Sandy

Barb, may you have all the things (or people) in life you would like. May peace be with you. Love
Debbie

Joan Bradley J Cooper

~~To Barb~~
to Barb

Barb,
I guess I've never told you this but you're one in a million and I love you.
I know that as this year goes along, we are going to be even closer friends. I truly hope so. Barb, always have hope and I'm sure life will turn in your favor.
Best of everything.

Love in friendship
Carol

Barb,
This year is coming to an end but it has been really great to have you as a friend! Don't ever forget the stage band practice. Big and remember me and the fun that we have had. Good Luck in the future.
Love
Debra
